17.	Pureau v The State of Western Australia [2017] WASCA 115	24 yrs at time offending. 26 yrs at time sentencing. Convicted after trial. Born in NZ; arrived in Australia aged 17 yrs.	Ct 3: Threat to kill. Ct 4: Agg AOBH. Ct 5: Dep lib. The victim, M, was several wks pregnant and had been in relationship with appellant approx 6 wks. They shared a home with three other people.	Ct 3: 3 yrs imp (cum). Ct 4: 2 yrs imp (conc). Ct 5: 3 yrs imp (cum). TES 6 yrs imp. EFP.	Dismissed. Appeal challenged the individual sentences on cts 3 and 5 and concerned totality.

	Delivered 26/06/2017	Prior criminal history; including a conviction of AOBH in a domestic setting. Employed plasterer. No illicit substance or alcohol use.	M left to attend appointments, borrowing the appellant's mobile phone and car. When she returned he was angry with her for being away for so long. They argued and he abused and spat in M's face. She called out for someone to call the police, however other occupants did not do so as illicit substances were in the house. The appellant left the house. Other occupants bound M with tape and assaulted her. Bulk of injuries caused by others. The appellant returned. Armed with a knife and taser and wearing gloves, he ordered M into a room and told her he was going to kill her. He pointed the knife and threatened her with the taser, telling her the more she screamed the more pain he would inflict. He att to taser M in the face but she raised her arms to protect herself, the taser cut her thumb. The appellant pulled M's hair and dragged her from room. She was subjected to further threats and assaults before she was able to escape. Between everyone involved, the ordeal lasted more than five hours.	The judge found appellant's overall offending constituted a very serious example of domestic violence and the real seriousness of the offence was his threats to unlawfully kill M and the deprivation of liberty. The real harm was psychological. Appellant denied the offending. Lack of remorse and genuine empathy.	At [75] ... M was defenceless and particularly vulnerable by reason of the greater physical strength of the appellant and her pregnancy. The offences occurred in a domestic setting. The fact that the offences were committed in such a setting increases the seriousness of what the appellant did. It does not matter that their relationship was brief. At [76] ... Although the offences occurred in the one transaction, the imposition of conc sentences would have resulted in a TES that would be an inadequate and inappropriate reflection of the overall criminality of the appellant's conduct.

D sustained bruising to her leg and a cut to her head that bled profusely (ct 3). McCoombe was verbally abusive to D so she went into the toilet to get away from him. He followed and kicked in the door. D attempted to escape the home. As she did so McCoombe got a kettle full of boiling water and poured the boiling water on her. He also pushed D onto a mattress and punched and kicked her (ct 4). D was prevented from obtaining medical treatment for several days. She suffered extensive second and third-degree burns down her back.	TES 6 yrs 2 mths imp. He sought to justify what he did by blaming D. ... he poses a high risk of further serious violent offending against his domestic partners. At [36] We are acutely aware of the severity of the sentence imposed on ct 4 ... the sentence was very close to the maximum penalty for the offence. However, when all the relevant circumstances are considered, including the appellant's PG and his antecedents, ct 4 was plainly an offence of the utmost gravity of its kind.

C raised her hands to protect herself and the appellant hit her arms and legs. C suffered bruising to her arms and legs and required 14 staples to her head. The appellant pursued C out of the house and struck the windscreen and door panel of the C's car (ch 3). $500 damage was caused to the car.	TES 5 yrs 3 mths imp. EFP. The sentencing judge observed that the sentences for the two agg AOBH offences were shorter than the offences deserved because of totality reasons. The sentencing judge accepted for sentencing purposes that C was the appellant's drug supplier. Sentencing judge found that the flicking of grass by B was pretty minor, but probably inflamed the situation; the appellant was in a highly volatile state anyway and may well have overreacted even if B had treated her with kid gloves. The appellant's mental health was of limited mitigatory value. The sentencing judge found that illicit drug use was the appellant's predominant problem, but	the District Court was aware of the negotiations and agreement on the material facts which occurred before the appellant entered her PG in the Magistrates Court ... At [28] ... the facts as stated in the Magistrates Court asserted that Rodney Smith had flicked grass into the appellant's face and that Rodney Smith had raised his fist towards the appellant before she struck him. By contrast, the facts as stated in the District Court ... asserted that Rodney Smith had flicked grass at the appellant and the stated facts did not include the assertion that Rodney Smith had raised his fist towards the appellant before she struck him. At [33] ... the appellant's response was grossly disproportionate on either version of the facts.... even if the appellant should have been sentenced on the basis of the facts as alleged
